

These are the colors that will be used throughout the website. Each color's usage is indicated.

In this document, clickable elements will link to their output pages. In cases where multiple output pages are possible, like when an event is created by an unregistered user versus an existing user, the behavior is what would be seen by an existing user.

The form is a light gray rectangle with a black border. At the top, there is a green header bar with the text 'Register to Rendezvous' in white. Below this is a dark green bar with the text 'Create an account to join the community.' in white. The main area of the form contains four white input fields with black borders, labeled 'User Name', 'Email Address', 'Create Password', and 'Confirm Password'. Below these fields is a checkbox labeled 'Accept terms and conditions' which is checked. Underneath the checkbox is a black button with the text 'Register' in white. Below the button is the text 'Already have an account?' and another black button with the text 'Log In' in white.

This is the dialog displayed when the "Sign Up" button is clicked.

If an event is joined, the "Leave" button is displayed and no editing of details is enabled.

If an event is created, the "Cancel" button is displayed and the details fields can be edited.

Notifications and messages are displayed in drop-down dialogs when their respective buttons are clicked. In this mockup, they are both shown side by side. The background is left uncolored.
